The Fall Line Trail will run right near Womack Green!

The proposed 43-mile continuous trail that will run from Ashland to Petersburg represents a significant initiative aimed at connecting communities, schools and jobs across seven localities. Officially breaking ground in late 2023, this exciting project signifies a commitment to promoting outdoor recreation and improving quality of life for residents in the region. The portion of the trail near Womack Green is anticipated to start in Fall 2025.

The Fall Line trail will be the spine of growing active transportation network in the Richmond area and beyond. The northern section of the trail is contiguous with the East Coast Greenway and US Bike Routes 1 & 76. The Fall Line will connect to the Virginia Capital Trail in downtown Richmond, enabling users to enjoy a 51-mile traffic-free route to Jamestown and Williamsburg to the east. Once completed, the Fall Line, Appomattox River Trail, and existing Virginia Capital Trail will create a nationally-significant 65-mile trail loop nearly entirely separated from traffic. The Fall Line also provides access to countless miles of spur trails and paths, many of which connect to parks, rivers, and cultural touch points.
